

- Positively Produced and the Network for Sustainability of the Hochschule Flensburg (NeNa) present –

Sustainably packaged – recycling and reuse of food packaging

A food system entirely without packaging is impossible. But: in order to tackle the environmental challenges ahead of us, we need to improve our packaging and reduce the associated waste volumes. How can the recyclability of packaging be determined? When does a reusable system make sense and how does it work? How does our packaging make it into a closed-loop system that conserves global resources?

In a half-hour impulse talk each, the two experts Elena Schägg, project manager for circular economy at Environmental Action Germany (Deutsche Umwelthilfe), and Dr. Andreas Grabitz, business unit manager for packaging materials from the international laboratory group Eurofins, will tell us about their experiences, methods and findings.

WHEN? May, 20th at 2 – 3.30 p.m.

WHERE? The event takes place online via Webex

About the project Positively Produced

Positively Produced is an Interreg project with 10 partners, food producers and knowledge institutions, that share a common and ambitious goal across borders between Denmark and Germany: to promote sustainable food production and consumption in the two neighbouring countries. In a climate-conscious and cross-cultural collaboration, we want to set out on the path to holistic sustainability. This includes environmentally friendly production methods but also important social and economic aspects, for example sustainable procurement. Visit the project website for more information or connect via Linked-In.

About the Network for Sustainability of the HS Flensburg (NeNa)

The Network for Sustainability (NeNa) was recently founded to connect activities in sustainability across the Hochschule Flensburg: no matter if student, administrative/scientific staff or professor, the network is open to everyone interested. And it does not stop here: external members are welcome! Together we aim at creating a vibrant network to share knowledge, to connect and to increase synergies. You are interested in joining? Internal members of the Hochschule: join via StudIP; for external members: please get in contact via rebekka.kuechler@hs-flensburg.de